PUBLIC AUCTION.

To be sold, at public auction, at Northumberland court house, in the county of Northumberland, and state of Virginia, on TUESDAY, the fifth day of September next, at eleven o'clock, in the forenoon, Five contiguous Plantations,

Amounting together to about 2700 Acres, SITUATE on the river Potomac, and within about three miles of the courthouse. These estates formerly belonged to Presley Thornton, Esq. and are the same on which he lived. They have never been seen by either of the subscribers; but it is understood, that about 1700 acres of them are as valuable low grounds as any on the river, and a considerable part thereof heavily timbered.
The uplands consist of about 1000 acres, and the whole is well calculated for the production of corn, wheat, tobacco, timothy, and small grain of all kinds, in great abundance. The waters are said to abound with excellent fish, oysters, and wild fowl. The water carriage is easy and convenient to Norfolk, Baltimore, Alexandria, and the city of Washington; and as these estates possess several good mill seats, with an abundance of water, and a plentiful supply of timber, they must be very valuable.

The premises will be shewn to persons inclining to purchase, by Col. James Moore, who lives on them, or by Samuel Blackwell, Esq. who lives near to them; and the terms of payment may be known a sufficient time before the sale, by applying to either of them, or to the subscriber in the city of Philadelphia.

A SCOTCH SONG.

WHEN I UPON THY BOSOM LEAN.
Written by JOHN LAPRAIK, and addressed to his wife, who had been fretting over their misfortunes. See Note, in RELIQUE OF BURNS, p. 106.

WHEN I upon thy bosom lean,
And fondly clasp thee a' to't;
I glory in the sacred ties That made us one, who once were twain:
A mutual flame inspires us baith,
The tender look, the melting kiss;
Even years shall ne'er destroy our love, But only gie us change o' bliss.

Hae I a wish? its a' for thee;
I ken thy wish is me to please;
Our moments pass sae smooth away,
That numbers on us look and gaze, Weel pleas'd they see our happy days, Nor envy's sel finds aught to blame;
And ay when weary cares arise, Thy bosom still shall be my hame.

I'll lay me there, and take my rest,
And i' that aught disturbs my dear, I'll bid her laugh her cares away,
And beg her not to drap a tear:
Had I a joy! its a' her ain; United still her heart and mine;
They're like the woodbine round the tree, That's twin'd till death shall them disjoin."

The following beautiful lines were written by Lord Palmerstone, on the death of his wife.

Whoe'er like me, with trembling anguish brings,
His heart's whole treasure to fair Bristol springs;
Whoe'er like me, to soothe disease & pain, Shall seek these salutary springs in vain; Condemn'd like me to bear the faint reply,
To mark the fading cheek, the sinking eye; From the chill brow to wipe the damps of death,
And watch in dumb despair, the short'ning breath;
If chance direct him to this artless line, Let the sad mourner know his pangs were mine.
Ordain'd to lose the partner of my breast, Whose virtues warn'd me, and whose virtues blest; Fram'd every tie that binds the soul, to prove,
Her duty friendship, and her friendship love.
But yet remembering that the parting sigh, Appoints the just to slumber—not to die,
The parting tear I check'd; I kiss'd the rod,
And not to earth resign'd her, but to God.

From the BOSTON REPERTORY.

MAN AS HE IS.

In the course of several years editorial labors, we have frequently availed ourselves of extracts from the political writings of Mr. JOHN ADAMS, late president of the U.
States. We have ever found instruction in perusing his dissertations on government; instruction confirmed by the authority of the best historians, and illustrated by actual observations on men and manners. He appears to have early enriched his mind with a store of correct deductions from the lessons of general experience; not amassed a fund of facts, without theory, like Hippocrates in the medical world; but like Brown and other distinguished moderns, to have constructed his system on principles, established by nature, and to have developed the moral, as they have the physical constitution of man. Mr. Adams has not contented himself with tracing the various conduct of the social being, but has explored the secret springs of action; by which means he early detected the errors of certain modern systems of policy, and cautioned the world against their impracticability.

Of his political writings, we most esteem his "DISCOURSES ON DAVILA," a small volume abounding in sound and profound illustrations of the human character, which may be studied attentively, with advantage by every man who would be a thorough statesman—while however we profess a high confidence in the doctrine of this volume, we conceive it both prudent and just to ourselves, to add a slight qualification.
We are not convinced that the evident partiality of the author, to concentrating political influence and dignity in an individual supreme magistrate, is better founded than the notion of Hamilton and Ames, more strictly republican, and more conformable to the principles on which our constitution were predicated. Though we have observed this difference in their sentiments, we do not presume to condemn or decide.

We leave it to sages to determine.

But to return:—In our republic young as it is, there have not been wanting instances of eccentricity, in the conduct of some distinguished men, for which a superficial observer, and probably a large portion of the community, may have been at a loss to account. But in the "Discourses on Davila" that admirable key to the knowledge of motive, we find explanations no less satisfactory than striking. We might quote columns to advantage; but at present, we confine ourselves to two short extracts; confident that on perusing them what we have said of Mr. Adams's great knowledge of human nature, will obtain the ready assent of our readers.

Extract from No. 7.

"The awful feeling of a mortified emulation, is not peculiar to children. In an army or a navy, sometimes the interest and partial favor prevail, to promote officers over their superiors, or seniors. But the consequence is that those officers can never serve again together. They must be distributed into different corps, or sent on different commands. Nor is this the worst effect. It almost universally happens, that the superseded officer feels his heart broken by his disgrace. His mind is enfeebled by grief, or disturbed by resentment—and the instances have been very rare, of any brilliant action being performed by such an officer. What a monument to this character of human nature is the long list of yellow admirals in the British service! Consider the effects of similar disappointments in civil affairs. Ministers of state, are frequently displaced in all countries—and what is the consequence? Are they seen happy in a calm resignation to their fate?
Do they turn their thought from their employments, to private studies or business?
Are they men of pleasant humor & engaging conversation? Are their hearts at ease?
Or is their conversation on a constant effusion of complaints and murmurs, and their breasts the residence of resentment and indignation, of grief and sorrow, of malice and revenge? Is it common to see a man get the better of his ambition, and despise the honors he once possess'd; or is he commonly employed in projects, intrigues after intrigues, and manoeuvres on manoeuvres to recover them? So sweet and delightful to the human heart is that complacency and admiration, which attend public offices, whether they are conferred by the favor of a prince, derived from hereditary descent, or obtained by election of the people, that a mind must be sunk below the feelings of humanity, or exalted by religion or philosophy far above the common character of men, to be insensible, or to conquer its insensitivity. Pretensions to such conquests are not uncommon; but the sincerity of such pretenders is often rendered suspicious by their constant conversation and conduct, and even by their countenances. The people are so sensible of this, that a man in this predicament is always on the compassionate list, and, except in cases of great resentment against him for some very unpopular principles of behaviour, they are found to be always studying some other office for a disappointed man, to console him in his affliction."

Extract from No. 9.

After saying that "attention, consideration, and congratulation, comprehend with sufficient accuracy, the general object of passion for distinction, in the greater part of mankind"—and that "the greater number search for it, neither by vices nor virtues, but by means which common sense and every day's experience shew; are more sure to obtain it; by riches, by family records, by play, and other frivolous personal accomplishments"—Mr. Adams observes:

"But there are a few, and God knows but a few, who aim at something more:— They aim at approbation as well as attention; at esteem as well as consideration; and at admiration and gratitude as well as congratulations. Admiration is indeed the complete idea of approbation, congratula-tion and wonder united. This last description of persons is the tribe out of which proceeds your patriots and heroes and the most of the great benefactors to mankind.
But for our humiliation, we must still remember, that even in these esteemed, beloved and adored characters, the passion, although refined by the purest moral sentiments, and intended to be governed by the best principles, is a passion still; and therefore, like all other human distress, unlimited and unsatiable. No man was ever contented with any given share of this human adoration. When Caesar declared he had lived enough to glory; Caesar might deceive himself, but he did not deceive the world, who saw his declaration contradicted by every action of his subsequent life. Man constantly craves for more, even when he has no rival: But when he sees another possessed of more, or drawing away from himself a part of what he had, he feels a mortification, arising from the loss of a good he thought his own: His desire is disappointed: The pain of a want unsatisfied is increased by a resentment of an injustice, as he thinks it: He accuses his rival of a theft or robbery, and the public of taking away what was his property, and giving it to another. These feelings and resentments are but other names for jealousy and envy; and altogether, they produce some of the keenest and most tormenting of all sentiments.

These fermentations of the passions are so common and so well known, that the people generally presume that a person in such circumstances is deprived of his judgment, if not of his veracity and reason."

AGRICULTURE.

July 3d, 1809.

MR. MINER,

The season, I believe, is not so far advanced, but that the publication of the following extracts may be of benefit. They are taken from the Domestic Encyclopædia a work originally compiled and published in England, by Dr. Willich, and republished in Philadelphia, with many considerable and valuable additions, by Dr. Mease. As the size of this work, (five large octavo volumes) and its consequent high price, will probably prevent its making 1st way into many private families, I should think that a judicious selection of extracts from it, relative to domestic and rural economy, occasionally appearing in your paper, (which I observe, is principally devoted to miscellaneous matter) would be neither unwelcome nor uninteresting to your numerous subscribers.

Pardon this hint, sir, and believe me to be, with much good will,
Yours, &c.

VIGARESTES.

"The fly which is very often destructive to cucumbers, melons, and pumpkins, may be killed by sprinkling a mixture of tobacco-water and red pepper, over the vines."

"A friend, E. B. Esq. informed the editor that some years since, nearly all the cucumber and melon vines in New Jersey, were destroyed by a fly or bug. One day he had occasion to ride by a miserable hut in the woods, and perceiving a very flourishing patch of cucumbers, he was induced to dismount and to examine it. Upon approaching the spot he found it had formerly been a charcoal heap. He took the hint, and by strewing powdered charcoal round about the vines when they first came up, preserves his cucumbers effectually."

"Mr. J. W. of Philadelphia, informed the editor, that he enriched the ground near the trunk of a peach tree, and sowed some cucumber seed, which came up very abundantly. He pulled up all the plants but one, and permitted the vine to run up the tree.
It bore 150 cucumbers. The numerous creepers with which the cucumber abounds, and the result of this experiment, would seem to point out the climbing nature of this plant, and the great advantage arising from permitting it to attach itself to a frame or tree, instead of confining it to the ground."

"The seeds of melons and cucumbers are apt to run too vigorously to vine, before they emit a single fruit. To prevent this, Dr. Darwin advises to wash the seeds clean from their pulp, before they are put away for preservation, and to keep them three or four years before they are sown. The experienced Abercrombie (Mawes' Gardener) confirms the advice to plant seeds two, three or four years old."

STOCKBRIDGE, (Mass.) July 1.

We take the opportunity of announcing thro' the medium of our paper, to the friends of the unfortunate Mr. HENRY INGERSOLL, the most pleasing intelligence of his probable release from a long and painful confinement in the vaults of a prison in South America, where this poor deluded, innocent young man has been suffering with great fortitude the most unexampled hardships. Intelligence has just been received in this town from Mr. Erskine, minister of his Britannic majesty's at Washington, that an application made by him through Mr. Hammond, his Britannic majesty's secretary of state to admiral Apodaca, Spanish ambassador at the court of London, has procured from the supreme government of Spain (the junta of Seville) an order to the government of Santa Fee, in which province Carthagena, the place of his confinement, is situated for his immediate release.

Alexandria Daily Gazette.

SATURDAY, JULY 23.

Ship United States, capt. Barnet this port, has arrived at Barbadoes in tress.

DIED, at New-Orleans, on the 19th June, Lieutenant William M. Littlejohn, the army of the United States.

BY THE LAST MAIL.

NEW-YORK, July 17.

LATE NEWS.

The schooner Edward, Thomas, 15 from Barbadoes, arrived yesterday at quarantine ground. By this vessel the editors of the New York Gazette received Barbadoes papers to the 24th containing extracts from London to the 8th to the 23d May. The articles which we have copied are the most important.

The London papers speak of a probable change in the ministry, in which the duke Portland, earl Camden, and lord Malvern will be succeeded by earl Grey, the duke of Bedford, and Mr. George Ponsonby.

The British naval force in the Baltic has been considerably augmented. Rear-admiral Pickmore, in the St. George, has been sent to join sir James Saumarez on that station. Some operations of great extent were expected to be carried on immediately against Russia, in the event of her taking part against Austria; which England had pledged to deter her from; and in order to ciliate her, the Russian admiral Singapore and the crews of the squadron, pledged the convention of Cintra, have been returned home.

The Barbadoes papers state, that the French frigates Felicie and Franchise, of commodore Froide's squadron lately the Saints, after quitting Basseterre on the night of the 14th June put into St. Mark (one of them having sprung a leak) where they were watched by a British squadron.

BRIDGETOWN, (Bar.) June 23.

A large mass of intelligence has been received since our last, brought in duplicate by the Adrian cutter, 34 days from mouth, charged with naval despatches; by the Despatch three masted schooner Packet, in 31 days from Falmouth, with second mail of May, both arrived on the day. Our selection from the London papers (up to the 22d inclusive) enters ly into the sanguinary events passing on great theatre of war, now extended to the vast track of the continent comprised between the Baltic and the Adriatic.
We need scarcely further touch upon the certainly is a melancholy task to reconvalesces; but it becomes a firm meet calamities, rather than indulge ous hopes; for such only are now left at the struggle of Austria, defeated born down by the overwhelming pow-Bonaparte's armies, already again ad-to the capital of the empire. No de-however yet appears in the Austrian ment; and it would seem that though usurper even enter Vienna in triumph may not altogether conquer the empire many parts of which a popular feeling been awakened that promises one union for the salvation of the country happy indeed shall we be to announce the tide of success has turned against dire tyrant.

LONDON, May 19.

Lisbon mail arrived late last night, and Packet which brought it, brought also Soutag with despatches from Sir Ar-Wellesley. They are said to contain an count of our army being with 24 hours of Oporto. Soult had offered to ca-sulate on certain terms, but which have en refused by sir A. Wellesley. A battle en expected to take place on the 5th inst.

Sir Arthur's head quarters were at Cobra, where he had a force of 18,000 Enish troops, and 14,000 Portuguese. Soult d evacuated Oporto, and had marched to amarante, where there had been several ays fighting with the Portuguese troops nder the command of gen. Alveras, in which the French were beaten in every ac-on. There are about 3 or 400 French roops left in the garrison of Oporto.

The papers brought by the mail are to the
th. They state that the first division of the British army entered Coimbra on the 10th ult. which is about 50 miles from Oporto. They were received with the loudest acclamations. Whilst the British were advancing against Soult, who had lost all opes of being relieved from his perilous siuation by Marshal Victor, a division of 0000 Spanish troops had entered Chaves, for the purpose of cutting off the French should they attempt to effect their retreat into the southern part of Galicia.

The news from Spain is by no means unfavorable. Just before the packet sailed, there was a report in circulation, of a great ictory having been gained by gen. Reding, between Burelona and Villafranca. In the south they have made no progress; indeed they seem more inclined to fall back than advance.

Whilst Soult is exposed to this peril in the north of Portugal, Ney is in little less danger in Spain. He cannot be reinforced, and immediately after the surrender of Soult, he will have to encounter the British troops who are to enter Spain by way of Zamora.

A large mass of German and Dutch papers have been received, containing a great variety of details, some of which are important, and all interesting. We shall begin with those which relate to the operations on the north bank of the Danube. The archduke Charles has abandoned his posion on the Regen, and has retired towards the Bohemian frontiers. This movement has induced Davoust to break up from Ratishon, and having been joined by Bernadotte between Reiden and Schwanloiff, they have advanced to Cham and Wal-munchen. The reports of battles between the archduke and the French are unfounded.

Whilst the war is for the present confined on the north bank of the Danube, to mere manoeuvres and changes of position, Bernadotte is advancing on the south bank with the main body of his army along the two roads that lead from the Inn to Linz and Wells. On the 2d, part of the army had arrived at Sigaring, pushed on its advanced guard to Effering; the remainder of the army had reached Reid on the road to Wells. The force employed in this part consists of three French divisions, and the Darmstadt, Wirtemberg, and part of the Bavarian troops. The Austrians under gen. Hiller, reinforced by successive arrivals of troops from Vienna have passed the Trom, and taken a position behind Wells, where another battle is expected.

In the mean time the rest of the French and Bavarian troops are gone to Salzburg and the Tyrol, which is in a state of insurrection. There was some warm fighting on the 29th in the neighborhood of Salzburg and in the town itself. Gen. Jellachich refired towards the Tyrol. How serious af-airs are in that quarter, we may conjecture from the confessions even of the French themselves, that the whole of the northern Tyrol is in insurrection, that large bands of Tyrolese troops make incursions into Swabia and to the Lech, and carry off cattle and provisions in abundance. The Austrians meanwhile, according to the Zurich Gazette, have been successful in other quarters, have taken the important posts of Bregentz and Feldkerch, and have advanced as far south as Botzen, which was taken by storm. Co-operating with the division that came from Germany, another Austrian division entered the bishopric of Trent, had advanced to Trent, where the French papers say there was a warm action. This naturally directs our attention to the state of the war in Italy.

The first operations of the war in that quarter have been extremely successful.— From the Tagliamento the French have been driven back, and the Austrians successively took Vicenza and Padua, and advanced over the Adige. From thence they sent a part of their army, which, ascending that river, advanced to Trent. The unfortunate turn however of affairs in Germany obliged the archduke John to send 30,000 men thither, and his career was stopped on the Adige. The last accounts, dated on the 2d of May, left the French head quarters at Montebello, between Verona and Vi-cenza, and the Austrians on the other side of Vicenza. The bulletins and proclamations of the Austrians have produced considerable effect in that part of Italy, and in some places the people have risen.

Whilst the Dutch, French, and German papers, combine in giving accounts of the uninterrupted success of the French in Germany private letters from Holland speak of their having experienced a reverse of fortune at Linz, where they report a battle to have taken place about the 3d, in which the French were defeated, and forced to fall back to the Inn. These letters are of the 15th, and state, that all German mails had been stopped by order of Bonaparte; a rumor was in circulation that the French had been defeated near Linz about the 3d inst., and had lost 12,000 men; six generals killed, and one marshal; that the Austrians had retaken all their cannon, and regained their former positions, &c.

May 22.

On the 9th instant, the van of the French army under the Duke of Montebello, (Marshal Lasnes) was at Sigarskirchen, within 12 miles of Vienna, and Bonaparte had his head-quarters at St. Polten, about 26 miles from that capital. This important intelligence is communicated in the 5th bulletin of the French army. It appears from these important documents, that on the 4th, the Duke of Montebello crossed the river Enns at Steyer, and arrived at Arnstetten on the 5th; at Molck on the 6th; at St. Polten on the 7th; at Perschling on the 8th; from which place he proceeded the next day to Sigarskirchen. Bonaparte and his staff were close on the rear of Marshal Lasnes, and that of the Duke of Auerstadt (Marshal Davoust) one day's march behind that of Massena. Except a slight affair at Am-stetten, the advancing army do not appear to have experienced any resistance. On their approach the Austrians, under archduke Lewis and general Hiller, retreated before them until they came to St. Polten, where they separated on the 6th. Two-thirds passed to the northern side of the Danube, at Krems, and the other third proceeded to Vienna. With respect to the other French corps, we find that Berna-dotte's corps is detained in Bohemia by the archduke Charles, and had entered Egra, and that of the duke of Dantzic (marshal Lefebvre) was marching against the Tyrol.
The anxiety produced by the insurrection in the north of Germany, headed by colonel Schill, proves that it is of magnitude, and threatens serious consequences. A corps of observation is to be formed on the Elbe, under the duke of Valmy, to restrain it.— It is to consist of 60,000 men. Schill's force, according to the German papers, amounted to 40,000 men.

Besides the Dutch papers to the 17th, we have received French papers to the 14th, and German to the 13th instant. The latter contains a continuation of the series of the Austrian bulletins to the 14th number inclusive.
That Bonaparte would fulfil his menace of entering Vienna a second time, has always appeared to us highly probable; but it will in no degree decide the result of the campaign, if the government & people of Austria are united, firm and determi-ed. On the contrary, notwithstanding the past victories, and the talents, the means and the prodigious reputation of the Consican invader, we consider his position as most critical, and even becoming hourly more so, in proportion as he advances. The Austrian armies, though they have been beaten and repulsed on various occasions, are not disorganized nor destroyed. No Macks have as yet appeared among them; no dependency or symptoms of submission have hitherto been manifested by the emperor. Napoleon evidently betrays his sense of the emergency, and the crisis, in which his house and his fortunes are involved, by the measures to which he has recourse. Joachim Murat it seems, has been summoned from Naples to defend his own and his master's thrones; while Louis and his queen are ordered to attend him at Vienna. From every part of Europe his legions are called in, and the very crews of his ships of war if we may believe the Dutch themselves, are sent to join the armies of an Italian usurper, on the confines of Hungary, at the distance of 700 miles from Flushing. How great the consternation is that pervades Bavaria we may trace in the conduct of the king of that country, who neither dares to remain himself at Munich, nor considers the public records as safe in any part of his dominions.

He has taken refuge at Augsburg, while the archives have been removed to Zurich, in Switzerland. Insurrections run through all the north and centre of Germany, and only waits for further proofs of the Austrian cabinet, to involve in its effects the circles of Lower Saxony, Franconia, & Westphalia. Nor have we ever doubted that the king of Prussia and the elector of Saxony, will declare against the common scourge & tyrant of Europe, as soon as they shall see a chance of extrication. Even the Russian emperor, however subservient or enslaved he may have shewn himself at Tilsit and Erfurth, will, we imagine temporise, and finally join the successful tide.

Capture of the Toulon Fleet, &c.

Captain Dashiell, of the sloop Henry, 8 days from Bermuda, (arrived here on Sunday) informs us, that he left Martinique on the 27th of June, and on that day advices were received there of the capture of the Toulon fleet by lord Collingwood, consisting of 5 sail of the line, 6 or 7 frigates, and 30 transports, with the French garrison of Barceona on board. They were sent into Gibraltar.

A vessel had arrived at Martinique, having spoken on her passage an American ship from Gibraltar, the captain of which stated that lord Collingwood arrived at Gibraltar previous to his sailing, with the French fleet.

A letter received from St. Croix, by the Richard, of the 2d of July, confirms the above account of the capture of the French fleet.

A political work of extraordinary interest has just made its appearance from the press.
It is entitled memoirs of the hon. Thomas Jefferson, secretary of state, vice president, and President of the U. States of America; containing a concise history of those states from the acknowledgement of their independence with a view of the rise and progress of French influence and French principles in that country. These memoirs are comprised in two volumes 8vo. and filled with matter of the most serious and important nature. The life of the late president is examined from the beginning of the existence of the U. States, up to the moment of his leaving the chair of government; the difficulties thrown in the way of the administration of President Washington—the continued effort to infect the country with new and pernicious principles—the system of intrigue and calumny—and the multiplied acts of weakness and wickedness, which have disgraced the presidency of Mr. Jefferson, are brought into historical order, and canvassed with historical freedom. The state of the case between the country and general Wilkinson, and between gen. Wilkinson and Mr. Jefferson, occupies a proper portion of the writer's attention, and will not fail to engage that of the reader. The political truths which it belongs to this book to inculcate, are conveyed with remarkable force, and will not fail in making a correspondent impression.

RECOMMENDATION.

THE Superintendent of Police recommends to the citizens of Alexandria, during the warm season, a frequent use of LIME in their Privies and other parts of their premises where filth accumulates—and the greatest attention is required to the keeping clean and dry their cellars, so that no

He particularly requests the proprietors of unoccupied houses and cellars to cause them frequently to be opened and aired—housekeepers are required to cause all the rubbish accumulated in their back yards to be thrown into the streets that the scavenger carts may take it away.

TO MILLERS.

I HAVE invented a machine called a Wheat Rubber, for which I obtained a patent on the first day of this month. This machine may be seen in operation in the mill of Nathaniel Ellicott, Occoquan. Those millers who feel an interest in investigating its merit and have not an opportunity of visiting Occoquan, may be fully informed by application to Mr. Ellicott by letter. My Wheat-Rubber, I do verily believe is upon entire new principles, the cost of erecting it a trifle, the materials of which it is composed easily attainable in any part of our country, and the plan simple in the extreme: any workman of common capacity will be enabled to erect it from description only. Practical millers know, that in a great proportion of the wheat that comes to market (from the manner it is stacked in the fields by the farmers and exposed to the weather) a number of sprouted and unsound grains mingle with the mass, and has eluded the ingenuity of the miller to separate it from the sound grain—they also know those unsound grains injure materially the taste and color of flour—my machine not only frees the wheat of stones, onion, cockle, dirt, &c. but does absolutely take from it every unsound grain, from what cause soever it may have been injured, as my machine will not let any unsound wheat pass it—millers may have their screen wire much finer than hitherto used, and thereby save considerably—it will also be found that the grain in passing the rubber, is polished, and that even the eyes of the wheat is picked perfectly clean of dust or dirt. Some instances having occurred of certificates being obtained, saying much more in favor of a new invention than the public are willing to admit after trial—I hope it will be a sufficient apology for my taking a different course. My price for the privilege of using the rubber is fifty dollars for each pair of wheat stones the mill contains.

Letters directed to me post paid shall be attended to.

Patent Washing Machine.

THE subscriber continues to manufacture Yarwood's Patent Washing Machine, which by daily experience proves to answer the intended purpose, and for which the demand is great. He has already disposed of his right to the state of Maryland, and some counties in Virginia, and is willing to dispose of rights for counties in the different states to the southward of the Potomac river, and also for the territory of Louisiana. Masters of vessels will find it particularly useful.

Wm. C. Newton,

Assignee of Joseph Yarwood.

Just Published,

FOR SALE BY R. GRAY,

A CELEBRATED ROMANCE ENTITLED

ABEILLINO,

THE BRAVO OF VENICE.

Translated from the German, by M. G. Lewis, the well known author of the Castle Spectre, Monk, Adelgitha, &c. &c. Price, handsomely bound, one dollar—the English edition sold at one dollar seventy five cents.

What black Musician conjures up this fiend? What, do you tremble, are ye all afraid? Alas, I blame ye not, for ye are mortal, And mortal eyes cannot endure the devil—

Avaunt, thou dreadful Minister of Hell.

RICHARD III.

In justice to this excellent Romance, we need only remark, that the Grand Dramatic piece, which for several seasons past drew such full houses to our theatre, is founded on the same subject, as translated by Dunlap; but the acknowledged superiority of Lewis's writings or translations in the Romance style, being so far superior to any other of our modern authors, leaves encomium unnecessary with the publishers.

NOTE. Five editions of this Romance were sold in a very short time, after publication in London—it is dedicated to the Earl of Moira, by Lewis.
